Introduction:

The family is the first line of defense especially for children and a major factor in their survival, health, education, development, and protection. It is also a major source of nurturance, emotional bonding and socialization, and a link between continuity and change. It has the major potential to provide stability and support when there are problems. Human development can, thus, be enhanced by enriching family life

Families in India are undergoing vast changes like increasing divorce and separation rates, domestic violence, inter-generational conflicts, social problems of drug abuse, juvenile delinquency etc. These changes indicate the inability to cope with the pressures of the modern life. Yet, the majorities seems to have survived and are able to modify, adjust and adapt to changing social norms, values and structures, and have demonstrated a unique strength in keeping together despite the growing stress and strain.

Marriage is a socially recognized and legally protected voluntary and exclusive contract for lifelong union of two persons of opposite sex. Most Western nations and India have witnessed some far-reaching changes in the foundation of the family in recent years. Marriage has come to be regarded by many as a functional arrangement for 'social convenience'. The institution of marriage is under a great stress and strain. Issues like conflict of jurisdiction, parental child abduction, inter-country adoption rights, desertion, live-in relationship constitute major issues in marriages. The present legal framework is ill-equipped to address them.
