Workshop on Gender Rights and Sensitization
Convention Hall, 24 March 2018

Background to the Workshop:

Promoting gender equality and empowering women is one of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). The standard norm has been to debate about the eroding value system in the present society for the violence against women. Absence of gender sensitization amongst the males may be attributed to the gender inequality to a large extent. The issues of violence, subordination, and inequality based on gender, needs to be addressed by significant institutions like family, educational institutions, media and work place, which play a vital role in formulating attitudes and values on gender perspectives and relations.

Gender not only refers to the physical identity of men and women, but also refers to the role they play in a society that is conditioned by various factors arising out of social, political, economic and cultural contexts. Sensitization, at this juncture becomes important because of the prevailing inequality leading to socio-cultural discrimination of a single gender. This discrimination is being practiced by the members of the other gender of the same society, strongly supported and legitimized by religious and educational institutions, media, and the polity to a large extent. According to Gloria Stienem, "We've begun to raise daughters more like sons, but few have the courage to raise our sons more like daughters." The patriarchal order of Indian society continues to play an important role in the differentiated entitlements to for access to rights and resources.

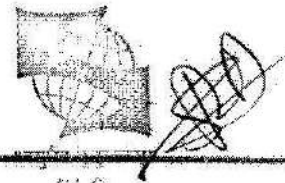

Indian Scenario

In the present scenario, the MDGs seek to promote gender equality and empower women that come as a boon to all the women globally. It is universally understood that it is the sensitization of gender in a society that can bring about a paradigm shift in the roles, rights, and privileges of men and women thus paving the way for socio-economic equality.

In a country like India, which is governed by the male patriarchal order, women suffer from multiple disadvantages. Some of the reasons for the prevailing unequal gender relations are attributed to the lack of gender sensitization, as a result of the inherent conditioning of minds of the people. In other words, the role of the family, peer groups, and educational institutions merit attention, in terms of the creation of a socio-cultural environment.

In India, gender as a social construct, continues to play an important role in translating the power relations between men and women based on masculinity and femininity; India practices power distance too which is reflected in relations between men and women at family as well as at a societal level. As Simone de Beauvoir had stated that, "One is not born a woman, but becomes one" - it is imperative that educational institutions and the civil society intervenes and contributes towards an egalitarian system which promotes gender relations and dignity, based on equality, justice and fairness.

About the Workshop:

The present workshop by SLS sought to address the issue of gender rights and the relevance of sensitization. It seeks to inform the law students about the various issues involving safety, security and dignity of women. It is an attempt to make the law students conversant with the various problems faced by women and provide legal remedies to them.

Objectives:

The objective of the workshop is to enable the students to:

- Highlight the prevailing trends with reference to gender equality
- Role of the state and civil society in identifying role of women in national development.
- Contribution of woman's movement in breaking stereotype.

Speakers:

1. Prof M.V.Lakshmi Devi, Principal, KV Reddy Law College, Hyderabad

Prof Lakshmi Devi spoke on She spoke on, "Gender Equality & Inequality. She stated that women in Indian have confronted unequal gender relations. Prof Lakshmi Devi mentioned that as per law there are provisions for gender equality, but emphasized that if we want equality or don't want equality, we ourselves want inequality. In other words she called for differentiating inequality based on biological differences from the inequality based on social constructs of gender. She spoke about the constitutional guidelines pertaining to gender rights and equality and also gave a historical account of the evolution of the movements for gender equality and sensitization across the world.

2. Ms. Shravya Reddy, Founder WE & SHE Foundation

Ms Shravya Reddy spoke about the inherent biases in the patriarchal society where even women at the top especially celebrities are targeted. She illustrated this by the example of female film stars being unfairly targeted for the failure of their films, while the male stars getting the credit in case the film becomes a block buster. She also explained the student about the challenges in dealing with skill development and confidence building training for women.

She also briefed the student about her foundation which works for the women who had dysfunctional marriages. She is also the Founder of 'BLAWN & BIG' which caters to the victims of fat shaming and dark skinned and to change the mind set of people globally towards these issues where we aim to bring together like minded people to share their experiences and drive the campaign forward so that it reaches the masses and people drop their idea of this social stigma and accept beauty in all forms.

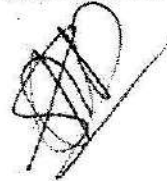

Expected Outcome:

- Dissemination of knowledge amongst the student on gender equality.
- Workshop will focus on engagement of gender with the law.
- Setting a strong base through mobilization of students and awareness through various sources of research and communication.

Conclusion:

The Workshop ended with the suggestions made by the resource persons about the role of the students in gender sensitization. Mr R. Radhakrishnan, the faculty in charge for the workshop gave a vote of thanks to the resource persons and the student participants.
