● Workshop on “Impact of Industrialization in Rural Areas”
by Dr. Sujatha Surepally, on 24th July 2018

“Every act of creation leads to an act of destruction”, similarly every act of creation of new technology has destroyed nature as well as the lives of many dwellers. It has now become very essential for the millennial to know the impact of the so called “development” which has benefitted a part of society by crushing away the aspirations and lives of the others. In this context the Environmental Law Clinic conducted the workshop on the topic “Impact of Industrialization in Rural Areas” for creating awareness among the students regarding the pros and cons of Special Economic Zones (SEZ).

The speaker for the workshop was Dr. Sujatha Surepally, a renowned environment activist and academician.

Speaker- Ms. Sujatha Surepally

The speaker started with a brief introduction about SEZ and its adverse impact on the environment and explained the businesses set up in the zone, financial policies including investment, taxation, trading, quotas, and customs and labour regulations applicable in SEZs. Cell-in-charge Prof. Ahmar Ahfaq felicitating the speaker

She explained that SEZ have been acquiring land from the farmers by including them as shareholders of the SEZ projects in return. She opined that the government should take the responsibility of rehabilitation of the farmers who are displaced and that the family members of the farmers should be reserved some vacancies of employment. She expressed her concern over the poor plight of displaced people who are denied all the perks assured to them and only receives an amount as meagre as Rs.18000/- or so per month which is not sufficient for the survival of the labourers and the members of their family. She also suggested that employment should be provided to the local workers and that limitations of maximum land acquired for SEZ etc. has to be set as the farmers are helping to SEZ and as much economic development is done through SEZ.

Guest of Honour Prof. Srinivas Bandameedi handing over token of gratitude to the speaker

Dr. Sujatha Surepally spoke on how the concept of sustainable development is remaining as a myth and how this approach is going to hurt us in the long run. She described of how she spreads awareness about local issues at the state level through the quarterly she edits and the newspapers for which she writes. She also discussed the Anti- Polavaram dam movement and shared the stories of indigenous tribes and how they are resorting to degrading work like prostitution to make both ends meet due to developmental activities and the consequent displacement. The speaker also expected all the aspiring lawyers to have a balanced outlook on development of urban as well as rural areas.

A total of 150 registrations were accepted for the workshop. It was a highly interactive session with the students engaging in a lot of discussion with her. It was extremely delighted to see the active participation of students of all the batches. It was a sheer delight to have Dr. Sujatha to acculturate the students with an apprising topic and to help them realize that everybody needs equal importance and benefits in this race of industrialization.

The audience captivated by Dr. Sujatha's speech.
