WORKSHOP ON "INTRODUCTION & EVOLUTION OF SPORTS LAW" by Mr. Tarun, on 27th August, 2018

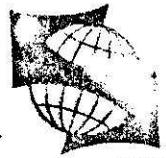

The Centre for Sports Law and Policy conducted a workshop on 'Introduction & Evolution of Sports Law' on 27th August 2018. The workshop was conducted at the conventional hall from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm. The guest speaker for the workshop was Mr. Tarun, who is a research and teaching associate at GNLU. Mr. Tarun was welcomed by a member of the CSLP, Ananya Muthamma and he was thereafter felicitated by officiating director Dr. Sukhvinder Singh Dari.

The workshop was divided into four sessions:

The first session began with the evolution of play, game and sport. The meaning and scope of play, game and sports was discussed. 'State of Mind' being the most essential part of 'Play' was understood. A book on 'Role of Play' by Johan Huizinga was referred to, which specified 'Man' as a maker, as a player and as a living being with a reasoning power. The process of how 'play' converted into a 'game' and further a 'game' converted into a 'sport' was briefly discussed. Various characteristics and attributes of Sports were looked into. This session ended by knowing the concept of Eros vs. Thanatos and added a bit to the importance of 'Sports & Culture.'

The second session dealt with the 'Rise of Modern Sports and International Bodies.' The birth of Modern World from 19th century which further led to the evolution of 'modern Sport' was briefed. Difference between uni-centric and multi-centric sports system and how 'sports' and 'power' plays an important role on Globalisation was discussed.

The third session involved sports, politics and international relations which is the biggest reason for the existence of sports law. The importance of organisation structure was analysed by referring UN (United Nations) along with the issues of international organisations, conventions and limitations. Mr. Tarun enlightened the students by illustrating examples of famous personalities like Anita L. Defrantz (a brilliant rower who serves on the legal affairs commission of the IOC), Tony Smith and John Carlos (the 'black' athletes) and Jackie Robinson (American professional baseball player) who fought against the discrimination they faced and further helped the students know about their struggle and obstacles faced and subsequent achievement of success in their respective careers.

The fourth and last session focussed on the need, challenges and the way forward in the arena of sports. The guest speaker threw light on the legal aspect of sports law, which involved the role, and rise of the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA), which serves as a significant institution in maintaining the true spirit of sports, by eliminating and deterring the manipulation of sports through corrupt practices. Special emphasis was made on the Court of Arbitration for Sports (CAS), its divisions, and the position of India at the CAS, which plays a significant role in resolving disputes between nations with regard to sports.

The workshop concluded with vote of thanks by Mr. Ahmar Afaq, head of CSLP and he thanked the guest speaker Mr Tarun for his enriching guidance on sports law, the Officiating Director for giving the cell an opportunity to conduct the workshop, the cell members and the students for actively taking part in the workshop. The workshop was very informative which provided the students with a clear idea on the niche of the subject.
