Q1A. Two friends, Mr. Kumar and Mr. Prabhu Charan, both 17 years old went on a hunting trip to the Chandaka forests at Odisha. During their expedition, they hunted and killed a rare species of animal, the nilgiri tahr. A local resident witnessed the act and attempted to alert the villagers and the forest department through a phone call, but due to poor signal, he could only provide partial information — specifically, that two boys had entered the reserved forest for hunting. The call was disconnected before more details could be given.

Mr. Kumar and Mr. Prabhu, upon realizing that they had been seen and fearing legal consequences, approached the local resident. When he refused to remain silent despite their offer of a bribe, the two friends, in panic, attempted to kill him using the same hunting weapons. They then hid the body in a hollow space nearby. The next day, when they returned to the site, the body was missing. Terrified, they fled and went into hiding. Mr. Kumar's medical condition deteriorated, and he suffered a paralytic attack.

Subsequently, the police investigated, filed a charge sheet, and submitted it to the court. The court issued a warrant, and both Mr. Prabhu and Mr. Kumar were produced before it. Mr. Kumar and Mr. Prabhu Charan pleaded for acquittal for the offences committed. Analyze with the support of statutory provision and relevant case law.
